Off With His Head, Said The Queen . . .

August 27, and the endless summer is sailing its final days. The season's head slowly begins to fade as it blends with the musty warm days of a fresh autumn. The seniors of last spring's commencement are gone, and the wise ones know they will never return. Their allotted time has come to pass, and regardless of their struggle time steadily plods ahead. The noonday sun has begun to sink ... etc., etc.

Amidst such pessimistic garble is the beginning of a new fall.

Garble? A convenient word to explain the disorder of life. Effective in describing situations one simply does not understand. "Garble," by the way, was taught to me by an ex-senior. (Proof that learning does occur in lower forms of life.)

Fall. What an odd time for a beginning. Yet, it is only sensible as the seniors leave in spring.

"Whoa," said the prophet, "I think there's a lesson here." Let me try to explain without too much garble.

In perspective, all things have their time. A Biblical lesson, difficult if not impossible to grasp and follow. The incoming freshmen are relinquishing 18 years of another life, and have signed up for a ride they will never forget. It is appropriate they begin in the fall, as they are also concluding another phase of their life simultaneously.

The seniors, on the other hand, begin life anew when they leave this institution. They belong here in the spring, their minds are forging ahead beyond ivory towers.

Obviously, both are going through difficult times, leading two lives at once. In between those glorious years are juniors and sophomores. Simple years of insanity.

I warn you, don't dwell too long on this topic. It is depressing when one realizes that this has been going on here for 159 years. Maryville College might say you're merely a number ... nothing else. Look at the sidewalks beneath your feet; the class of 1902, the class of '04, of '10, ... they speak for themselves.

And so the new year is upon us. New faces, new joys and sorrows, and the same old headaches. When it concludes, forever finis, only memories will remain. Freshmen will be sophomores, sophomores will be juniors, juniors will be seniors and seniors will give their ultimate valediction to youth. Many faculty will disappear and the administration will only come with change ...

The lesson here is obvious, painfully simple. It is either good or bad. One either accepts or rejects the painted picture of reality which clothes our existence. Your choice determines your destiny. Your fate is already known.

Garble you say? Of course it is.

Isn't it:

Listen to my story, though, I haven't told it all.
Unto my heart an air that kills
From yon far country blows,
What are those blue remembered hills,
What spires, what farms are those?
That is the land of lost content,
I see it shining plain,
The happy highways where I went
And cannot come again.

A.E. Houseman

Bob Bishop, ECHO, September 21, 1978.

September 5-11

In the beginning there is "Orientation Week." All new freshmen, as well as all who have attended college, know what it is, or do they? It's a week of many different feelings, experiences, and behavior. There are tests to be taken, people to meet, things to learn, and many wonderful sights to be seen. Leaving home and becoming an adult is a scary feeling that clouds the young mind of a freshman at the beginning of the new period of his life. Making new friends and leaving old ones also has a bearing on his mind. Is this beginning good or bad? Should this young person have to face a week of trials to be able to make it in the big new period of his life? From this week of work and play called Orientation Week, which part is the most important?

The taking of tests is very awakening. The tests will let the "big man" know where to place one, not in a class that will be too hard or too easy but in one that will do the most good.

Another responsibility of Orientation Week is to fulfill the need of social activities. The group of students that MC now calls the largest freshmen class is the beginning of a new breed. The beginning of the 1960's which produced a new kind of American that leaves the others in awe. These new Americans needed the social activities as much as the staff needed their tests.

With the balance of academics and social "tests," one could conclude that the combination of both helps to make Orientation Week a success. The student becomes aware of the things he has always heard of. The academic tests help the instructors to place him in a class that would help him. The social tests enables him to make new friends as well as see new lights. Therefore, at the end of the beginning, we have a college freshman eager to get going. — Andre´Avery —

Team Work

Homecoming weekend, October 13 and 14, began and ended in grand style. Activities began on Friday with a parade through Nowtown. The ''Highlander Band'' led the way followed by colorful floats, beautiful girls, and zany costumes.

Friday night there was a square dance sponsored by MC Alumni. Later there was a concert in Lloyd lobby with entertainment by ''Stanley.''

Saturday morning brought the annual Harvest Crafts Fair sponsored by the faculty wives. That afternoon, the ''Fighting Scots'' clashed with Millsaps. Pregame activities included presentation of floats and announcement of the winners.

At halftime, Colleen Masterson was announced as queen and crowned by President Wayne Anderson. A new contest was held, Big Man on Campus, and Jimmy Miller won.

By game's end the Scots had another win on their record, and the fans did also.

Saturday night came the Homecoming Dance in Pearsons. Music was provided by ''OZ,'' a rock group from Atlanta. The dance was a perfect end to a great weekend at MC.

All told Homecoming '78 will stand out in the minds of many Maryville students for years to come.

Three weeks of hiking, playing basketball, playing racketball, watching racketball, watching wrestling, swimming and going to a few classes — that's what Interim at Maryville College is.

Many say that Interim is not very helpful when really it is. The courses offered are different than those of the other terms. They are all a part of the development of young men and women who can learn other things without the pressures of graded classes.

The Interim is very short but its memories and effects are lasting. Students are more independent, and it's a period of self-awareness.

Basketball '78-'79 at Maryville College started with a face-lift — a new head coach and faces leading the Fighting Scots to a hopefully successful season.

In the fall, eager men came to MC to get a spot on the eleven-man roster. Competition was great; the coach's decision was tough. In the end, the coach chose the best fifteen men.

Six weeks of hard practice began. The fifteen ballplayers had to be molded into one good basketball team. Conditioning and determination made that team come about. The fifteen ballplayers soon began fifteen teammates; the unity was great. Andre Avery

ONE DAY IN WINTER

Softly the wind sighs sweetly
As snowflakes slowly fall,
From endless ocean grey,
To settle on garden walls;
  And the ways of common days
  Cease their restless rush
  To watch the winter wonder
  In the silence of enchanted hush;
But spruce and fir and hemlock
Dance upon the wind
To catch the winter fairies
Upon their long green limbs;
  All is white and white is all
  Till golden rain sifts down,
  To make a royal silver land
  Upon the common ground.

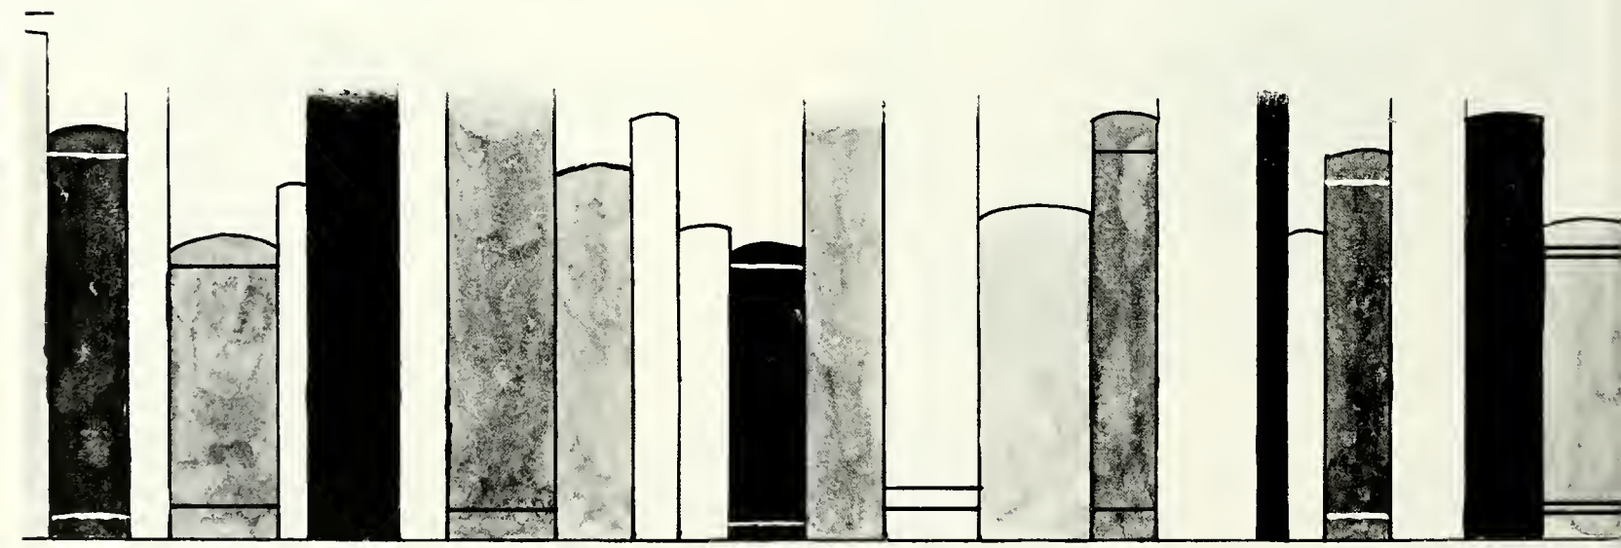
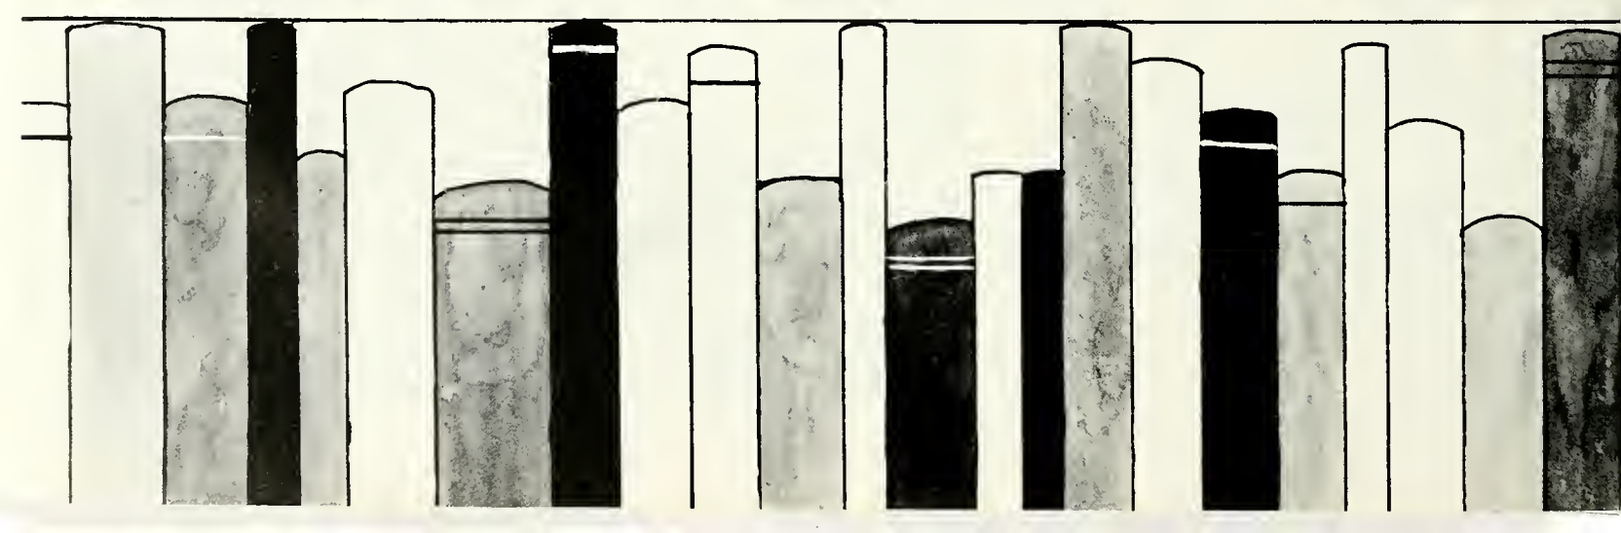
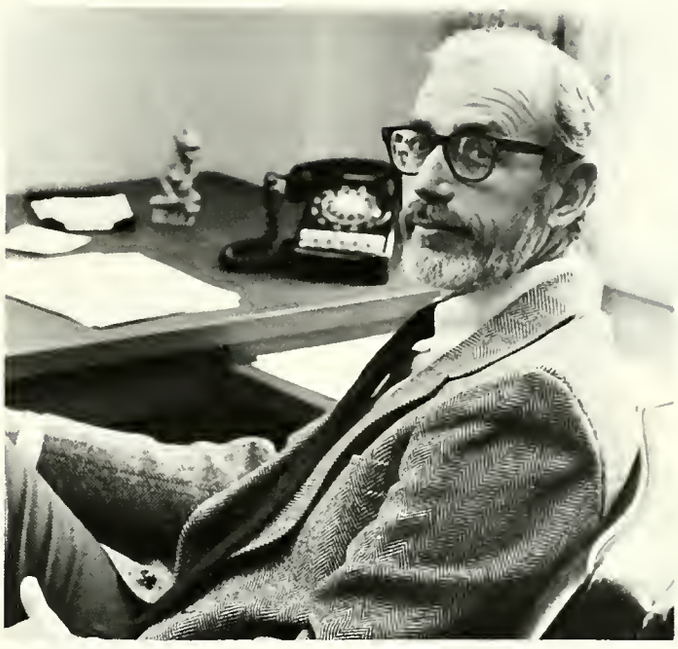
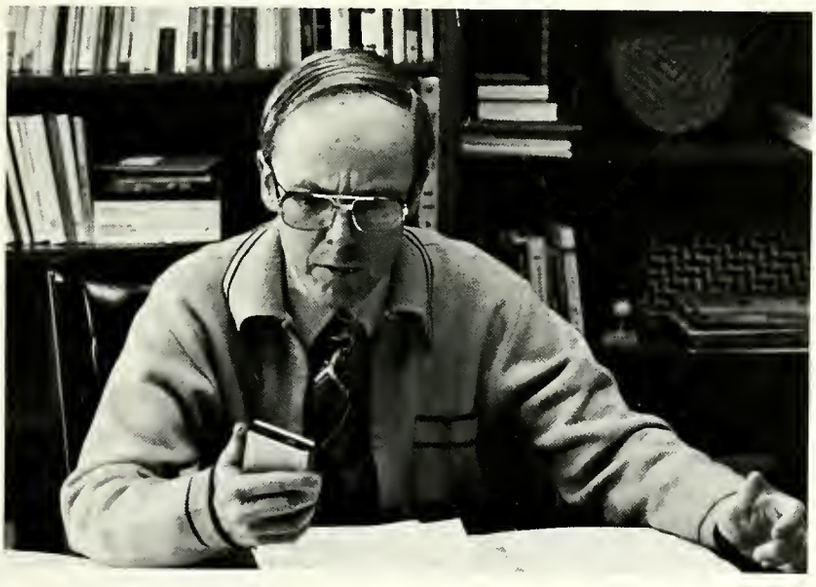
REFERENCE





Filling the position of Academic Vice-Prseident is Dr. Alfred Perkins. Dean Perkins attended Mercer University and Harvard University, receiving his masters and doctorate in European History. He served as Dean and Vice-President at Upsala College in New Jersey for five years prior to coming to Maryville. His calm exterior combines with his wit and humor to make Dean Perkins a pleasant addition to Maryville. Linda Wiley





Dr. Wayne W. Anderson is Maryville College's enthusiastic and optimistic President. He is a graduate from the University of Minnesota, The Woodrow Wilson School of Princeton University, with a Ph.D. from Georgetown University. President Anderson came here in 1977 to tackle the job of heading up MC. He has been successful in advancing many aspects of the College and is still working toward making Maryville a better campus. His hard work and outgoing character are only two reasons why he is called "Wonderful Wayne." Linda Wiley

Maryville College's new Dean of Students is Dr. Larry L. Mangus. A history education major with a master's in education from Ohio University and a doctorate from Indiana University, Dean Mangus is well qualified for the position. His open mind and willingness to seek change for the students should prove to be an asset to MC in the future. Linda Wiley

Work on this years annual began last summer when my staff and I began looking for a company to publish our yearbook. Due to a drastic cut in our budget many sales representatives didn't talk favorably about helping us publish a quality book. We eventually found a company and work began.

As work on the annual continued into the fall we realized that with a slight increase in our budget we would be able to put some color in the first sixteen pages. After explaining our situation to various people extra money was allocated to our budget.

Winter term turned out to be really hectic. As a senior, I was involved with student teaching and my staff was responsible for the work on campus. They really put forth an effort, especially Glenda McGill, my assistant editor. If Glenda hadn't been dependable, making our deadlines would have been questionable. Even with such dependable people little details were still hard to take care of.

Outstanding work was done by many people who took time out from studies to help complete our annual. Among the people I would like to mention is Donna Hurst. Besides being copy editor, Donna also worked with layout. Helping Donna with articles was Ande Avery. Another person who was there when we needed her was Dee Ambrister, club editor. Dee also worked on everything from clubs to layout. Jenny Andrews, art editor, designed our cover and made sure all art was completed. She was helped by Joel Andrews, who takes credit for our Fall, Winter, Spring scenes.

Yearbook finances were in the capable hands of Dillon Davis. Dillon was also very helpful in other areas. Although not a member of my staff, Colleen Masterson, president of the senior class, was responsible for the senior section of our yearbook. As president she had many obligations but yearbook material was always finished when we really needed it.

This year's photographers did an outstanding job. My photography editors, Tillman Crane and Tony Scalise, began with great enthusiasm but conflicts arose and other photographers were chosen to help them. Wylie Hill, Clarence Maslowski, and Ernie Woody have pulled us through Winter deadlines.

I realize that our annual is far from perfect, but we did the best job we could with what was available. My apologies to any individual or group who feels this book is not really a Senior yearbook. I realize that there are many mistakes in this book, but they were not intentional.

Pam McCroskey
EDITOR

P.S. As a senior at MC I would like to take this opportunity to thank many faculty and staff members who have been of tremendous help over these four long years. Our parents are also special people who I feel we owe a special Thank You.
